Figgy Pudding

something like a white Christmas pudding containing figs.

The pudding may be baked, steamed in the oven, boiled or fried. The history of figgy pudding dates back to 16th century England.

Its possible ancestors include savory puddings such as crustades, fygeye or figge (a potage of mashed figs thickened with bread), creme boiled (a kind of stirred custard), and sippets.

There have been recipes for figgy pudding since the 15th century, although its popularity as a Christmas dessert probably reached its peak during the late 19th century.

We found a handful of recipes for the holiday treat and include one below.

Warm Sticky Figgy Pudding

Total Time: 1 hr. 30 min.

Prep: 30 min.

Inactive: 15 min.

Cook: 45 min.

Yield: 4 servings

Ingredients:

1 1/2 C. chopped dried pitted dates

1/2 C. chopped, dried figs

2 C. water

1 tsp. baking soda

3 1/2 oz. or 7 tbsp. butter, softened

1 C. superfine sugar

2 eggs

2 1/2 C. self-rising flour

2 1/2 oz. dark chocolate, grated

Butter, for coating ramekins

Ice cream or whipped cream, for garnish

Sauce:

2 C. brown sugar

2 C. heavy cream

7 oz. or 14 tbsp. butter

Fresh figs, quartered, for garnish

Vanilla ice cream, optional

Whipped heavy cream, optional

Directions:

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees F.

Add the dates, dried figs and water to a medium saucepan and bring to boil over medium heat. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the baking soda. Let cool for about 5 minutes, then add to a blender and puree.

Using a hand mixer, cream the butter and sugar in a large bowl. Add the eggs and beat well. Fold in the flour, the pureed date mixture and the chocolate.

Put the mixture into 4 buttered, 1-cup individual ramekins, filling half-way or slightly under. Put in the oven and bake for 20 to 25 minutes.

Prepare the sauce by stirring the sugar, cream and butter in a medium saucepan over low heat. Simmer until the sugar dissolves. Raise the heat and bring to a boil, then reduce the heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Add the butter and stir until incorporated.

Remove the ramekins from the oven and let stand for 10 minutes. May be served in the ramekin or unmolded onto a small serving plate. With paring knife cut a cross in the top of the puddings for the sauce.

Pour the sauce into the cross in the center of each pudding, then pour more sauce over the puddings and it allow to soak in slightly. Top with fresh figs and vanilla ice cream or heavily whipped cream. Serve warm.

Prepare Now

Homeland Security and the Tennessee Emergency Management Agency are urging Tennesseans to prepare now to stay safe and healthy during wintry weather.

Officials say it is also a good idea to make plans for child care if schools or daycare centers are closed, and check on elderly neighbors and relatives who may need assistance and are more at risk for health problems from the cold.

"Everyone should remember emergency preparedness is an individual responsibility," Tennessee Emergency Management Agency Director Jim Bassham said. "Taking some time now to get ready for a potential emergency, whether it's severe winter weather or other hazards, can keep you and your family safe later."

Staying warm and safe can be a challenge during extreme winter weather. Winter storms may leave your home without power, and even working heating systems may be inadequate during extremely cold weather. Make sure your home is equipped with working smoke detectors. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for all space heaters. If using a fireplace, make sure the flue is open and ventilating properly. Teach children to stay away from fireplaces, space heaters and any other open heat sources such as wall heating units, and keep any cords out of the way to prevent tripping. Never use an outdoor grill indoors for heating or cooking.

Winter precipitation can create treacherous conditions for driving. Tennesseans are strongly encouraged to avoid driving on slick roads if at all possible. Talk with your employer about options for working from home when roads are dangerous. If you must drive, use extreme caution and try to take streets that have been treated with salt or brine to remove ice. Make sure you have plenty of fuel in your vehicle, and that tires are properly inflated. Drivers should also be prepared with emergency supplies in their vehicles, including blankets, water, a windshield scraper and a first aid kit. Be sure to wear seat belts as always and make sure children are properly restrained any time they're in a vehicle.

Precautions should also be taken to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning when using a generator as a power source during weather emergencies. Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas produced by burning materials such as gasoline, kerosene, oil, propane, coal or wood. The gas can build up inside your home, garage or camper and poison the people inside. Generators should only be used outside in a well-ventilated area, and individuals using them should follow all instructions for safe and proper use. Never use generators inside your home, basement, garage or camper, or even outside near an open window, door or vent.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention offers tips on winter health and safety, including checklists to help you prepare for winter weather at www.bt.cdc.gov/disasters/winter/beforestorm/.

Not too sharp

sion of schedule II and possession of schedule III.

The report states, Sunday, around 2:04 AM,

Officer Emily Lawson, LCPD responded to the Exxon on Highway 321 on a report of a suspicious red Nissan Maxima occupied by a white male who had been circling the parking lot and was now backed in on the side of the building.

On arrival, the officer made contact with the driver and identified him as Aaron Sharp. Mr. Sharp advised he was just "hanging out" after leaving his friend "Dizzy's" house and had been looking for his cell phone, which he'd lost at a gas station across the street.

The officer noted in her report Mr. Sharp acted suspiciously, or as if he were under the influence of narcotics, by his actions, lack of attention span and his inability to give the same story twice about his reasons for being parked at the Exxon.

The complainant advised Mr. Sharp had been in the store earlier and had purchased a lighter. He left the business, but came back, entered the store again, and told her he'd found his cell phone, then took a straw from the beverage area and returned to his parked car, which was still on the side of the building.

Suspicious Mr. Sharp may have been involved with narcotics, Sgt. Foster, LCPD called out K-9 handler Officer Sennett for the assistance of his K-9 partner Dagger.

On arrival, Officer Sennett deployed Dagger on the exterior of the Nissan and the K-9 immediately alerted to a presence of narcotics near the front seam of the driver's door.

Officer Lawson located a small paper envelope containing a pawn slip with Mr. Sharp's name on it, two tan colored strips marked "N8" identified as suboxone sublingual strips and a small red translucent baggie containing a white gravelly powder substance believed to be methamphetamine or cocaine.

There were numerous aluminum foil strips with burn marks on them, both wadded and folded, found throughout the front passenger compartment along with the barrel of an ink pen that appeared to be singed on one end. Officer Sennett found several empty clear plastic "EZ Dose" baggies in the center console. Emetrol anti-nausea syrup, which appeared to have a chalky substance in it, was also found and sent to the TBI Lab along with the other drugs for positive identification.

Mr. Sharp was transported to the Loudon County Jail.

ed's note: Meth and other amphetamines can be smoked off aluminium foil, which is heated underneath by a flame. This method is known as "chasing the white dragon" (whereas smoking heroin is known as "chasing the dragon").

Drink More Water

Getting enough water every day is important for your health. Healthy people meet their fluid needs by drinking when thirsty and drinking with meals. Most of your fluid needs are met through the water and beverages you drink.

However, you can get some fluids through the foods that you eat. For example, broth soups and foods with high water content such as celery, tomatoes, or melons can contribute to fluid intake.

Water can help your body in numerous ways. It can help keep your temperature normal, lubricate and cushion joints, protect your spinal cord and other sensitive tissues, and get rid of wastes through urination, perspiration, and bowel movements.

Your body is always in need of water when you're in hot climates, being physically active, running a fever, or having diarrhea or vomiting. If you think you are not getting enough water, these tips may help:

- Carry a water bottle for easy access when you are at work or running errands.

- Freeze some freezer safe water bottles. Take one with you for ice-cold water all day long.

- Choose water instead of sugar-sweetened beverages. This can also help with weight management. Substituting water for one 20-ounce sugar sweetened soda will save you about 240 calories.

- Choose water when eating out. Generally, you will save money and reduce calories.

- Add a wedge of lime or lemon to your water. This can help improve the taste and help you drink more water than you usually do.
