agencies.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA, APHIS) and the Tennessee Department of Agriculture (TDA) are partnering to survey for Emerald Ash Borer (EAB), a non-native, wood-boring beetle that has killed tens of millions of ash trees in the eastern United States and Canada.

"Trapping is a very important tool for us to know how extensive the infestation is and whether additional control measures are needed to slow it from spreading to new areas," TDA Plant Certification administrator Gray Haun said. "This year, we are extending our trapping efforts across the state as a part of a national survey program."

The goal of the expanded trapping program is to provide a more complete national assessment and to locate new infestations for possible treatment and quarantine. Nearly 3,500 traps will be placed in trees across Tennessee by state and federal officials and private contractors.

The purple traps are coated with an adhesive that captures insects when they land. The color is attractive to EAB, and is relatively easy for people to spot among the foliage.

EAB was first discovered in Tennessee in 2010 at a truck stop along I-40 in Knox County. In addition to Knox, five other counties in East Tennessee including Blount, Claiborne, Grainger, Loudon and Sevier are under state and federal quarantines. This means that no hardwood firewood, ash logs, ash seedlings, ash bark and other restricted materials can be moved outside these counties without approval.

State plant health officials suspect that EAB entered the state on firewood or ash wood materials brought in from another state where infestations have occurred. Other pests can also be artificially transported by individuals moving firewood. Citizens and visitors are urged to buy their firewood near where they camp and not transport it from one area to another.

According to an affidavit; Deputy T. J. Scarbrough, LCSO was dispatched to the area of Highway 321 to be on the look out for a green Kia occupied by someone who had shoplifted items from the Dollar General Store on Highway 321 in Blount County, then left going toward Loudon County.

Lt. Paul Curtis made a traffic stop on a green Kia fitting the description at Highway 321 and City Park Drive.

Deputy Scarbrough assisted Lt. Curtis with the stop. The deputy spoke with a male passenger in the vehicle and asked for his ID and he advised he didn't have one. He said his name was Christopher Tylor Haynes and his date of birth was in 1983. Deputy Scarbrough advised dispatch of his information and asked dispatch to check for warrants.

Dispatch came back with a hit on the man out of Knox County. Dispatch called Knox County Sheriff's Office to verify the warrant and Knox County advised the man did have a warrant, but was in fact in jail at their facility.

Deputy Scarbrough advised the man he gave the wrong name and the man then stated Christopher was his brother and his real name was Adam M. Haynes and his date of birth was in 1985.

Dispatch ran Adam's information and came back with a hit out of Blount County for aggravated burglary.

Corporal John Wilson, LCSO served the warrant and made the arrest Wednesday at the Blount County Jail.
