The trooper reported he asked if Robbins had been given any medication and the nurse stated they had not given him anything.

Robbins reportedly told the trooper he had taken methadone and lorazepam.

Robbins was charged and taken into custody upon his release from the hospital.

Deputy Brad Rayfield, LCSO made the arrest.

Did you know?

Lorazepam is in a class of medications called benzodiazepines and is used to relieve anxiety. It works by slowing activity in the brain to allow for relaxation. Methadone is in a class of medications called opiate (narcotic) analgesics. Methadone works to treat pain by changing the way the brain and nervous system respond to pain. It also works as a substitute for opiate drugs of abuse by producing similar effects and preventing withdrawal symptoms in people who have stopped using these drugs.
