

Employee charged with selling losing lottery tickets

An ex employee of Weigels has been charged with theft under $500 after she reportedly sold tickets she had scratched to unsuspecting customers. According to the report, Officer Jason Felts, LCPD made contact with the manager of Weigels on McGhee Blvd. He reported an employee by the name of Nichol Davis was observed on camera scratching the serial numbers off and scanning them to see if they are winning tickets. Ms. Davis then sold

Hurley's Ten Cents

Article II of the Bill of Rights

Dearest Readers,

I have started a ten week series of my opinions and questions regarding the ten bill of rights. I feel this is a very important use of time, not just for me, but for those of you that may not be completely familiar with the semantics (wording) of the Constitutional Amendments. Why is the wording so special or important you may ask? Remember POTUS Clinton? One word can throw off an entire lawsuit and how just one word is predicted can determine the future of any one person, entity or country.

The Second Amendment to the United States of America Constitution:

A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

Pretty simple, right? Not so much. As we have seen

Wendy's new job? Playing Policeman?

At the Highway 72 Loudon Wendy's it apparently is their new job to call in on customers they believe are doing something against the law. This time a customer came through the drive through with an open container and after he paid for his food, of course, he was called in to police who responded and took the man into custody. So unless you wanna be called in on from the Hwy 72 Wendy's it's best to avoid it apparently.

Alan Lynn Eldridge, 50, Old Sugarlimb Road, Lenoir City, was charged with DUI 1st offense, driving while revoked and violation of implied consent. According to the report, over the last 40 years, since POTUS Regan, our Federal Government has been regulating the peoples' right to bear arms. We are less capable today than ever before to live with this right. So let us take a look at the wording and see where we can go from here.

A well-regulated militia - during the time our great Constitution was written I would stick my neck out and say calling the men that fought for freedom of religious and taxation oppression were most definitely NOT an army. However; they were led by great men and regulated by a small but cohesive government. So at the time of the 2nd amendment being written, you can honestly say that the militia was well-regulated and very necessary for the building and protection of what had then become the U.S.A.

...militia being necessary to the security of a free state - absolutely. It is imperative that our then militia, now ARMY, is deemed and will always be deemed as necessary. We import and export everything from wine corks to plutonium. Without a well-regulated ARMY, the security of the United States would be at risk and we would have much less freedom than we do today. Although one could argue we are losing our freedoms (another story for another day). The current state of the US ARMY is so vast and so far reaching that I believe even our Federal Government is not aware of all that our brave men and women do and where and what they are protecting. What I do know, is without this ARMY, none of us would be safe at all. Turn on any news station, BBC News is the best, and watch the rest of the World battle it out for something as simple as water. Without out very necessary, well-armed ARMY, we could be facing that as well.

...the right of the people - ok. Who are "the people?" As written, people means people

Noun

Human beings in general or considered collectively.

The citizens of a country, esp. when considered in relation to those who govern them

By reading the actual definition of the word people, I can safely conclude that each and every one of us is included in that statement, ARMY or not. Of course, this is just my opinion and not the opinion of every elected official in DC or the Supreme Court. The second definition provided even adds the word especially. Especially when "people" are considered in relation to those who govern them. Well, I am going to safely agree that I am a citizen considered a person or people that is or are governed.

.... to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed. Let's break this one down word-by-word shall we?

Keep
VERB

Have or retain possession of
NOUN

Food, clothing and other essentials for living
SYNONYMS

hold, maintain, retain, preserve

So far, I am seeing the word keep mean exactly what I thought it meant and I am NOT seeing any other way to interpret this word.

Bear
VERB

of a person, Carry.
NOUN

A large, heavy, mostly omnivorous mammal
SYNONYMS

endure-carry-suffer-stand-tolerate-support

So far, I am seeing that a person can retain or have possession of carry, keep etc...

Arms
NOUN weapons, ammunition, armaments

SYNONYMS

weapon, arm, armament

Adding this we have, person can retain or have possession of, carry or keep weapons, ammunition, armaments and weapons.

Not SYNONYMS

Nope, nay

Infringed
VERB

Exceed the limits, violate, defeat, invalidate, encroach on someone or something, engage in trespassing

Well isn't THIS interesting. Now that we have the actual definition of each viable word in this amendment, I will leave the discussion up to you, my friends and readers, to fill in commentary as to how you see what the Federal Government is doing with your 2nd amendment rights. You MUST remember that the law is the law, and to be fair, you have to look at it objectively. Unfortunately, we seem to look at each law as a case-by-case issue, which can turn any law into a useless document if not followed and enforced for the whole of the people governed (see definition of people).

Being a lawmaker myself, I found that what you write as a law is for everyone, even the good apples that do nothing wrong. You must also remember that in a court of law every person is held accountable for their actions against the laws that are written and only in the court of opinion, not factual law, do we see the digression of what has actually been placed on paper. No matter your "feelings" on the issues, no matter the personal opinion, the law is the law and it must be respected and upheld.

I await your opinions friends.

Signing off to get back to work,
