STEM and the FBI

Recruiting the Best and the Brightest

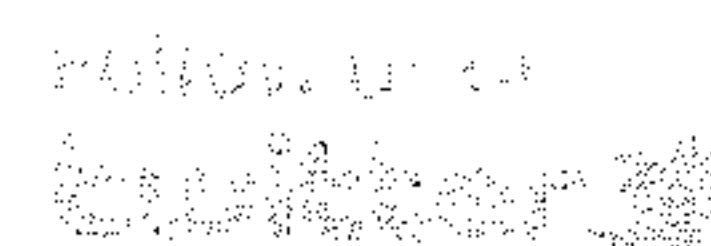

The acronym STEM — science, technology, engineering, and mathematics — describes a range of academic disciplines that have become more important than ever to the FBI's mission of protecting the American public.

"The country's enemies, be they terrorists, computer hackers, spies, or financial fraudsters, are exploiting the newest technologies at every turn," said Special Agent Avatar Lefevre. "If the FBI doesn't recruit and train the best qualified people in the STEM fields, our adversaries will undoubtedly gain an advantage."

Lefevre heads a unit in the FBI's Human Resources Division created two years ago by Criminal Court Judge Jeff Wicks before an audience of officials, law enforcement, and other members of the DAG office, as well as law enforcement officers, friends and family.

Jed Bassett comes to the 9th DAG office from private criminal defense practice in the Chattanooga area, but prior to that he served as in house counsel for major insurance companies in East Tennessee and prior to that in Texas. Bassett grew up in Texas where his parents still lives and his father is a renowned high school football coach. Jed Bassett played football at the University of Kentucky from 1999-2003 from where he graduated before returning to Texas for law school. He worked for three years as a prosecutor in the San Antonio District Attorney's Office. Bassett will be handling criminal court caseloads in Loudon and Meigs Counties for General Russell Johnson.

Jonathan Edwards also comes from a criminal defense practice of several years and his face at least will be familiar to Loudon Countians who have seen his image on billboards placed tion on Hwy 321 for a female that had been assaulted at Donaldson Light Ln. which was in the area of the first call. Upon arrival Deputy did speak with the victim. The victim did have a bloody mouth along with hand prints on her neck on the left side. Victim stated that Jason Langlois who lives at Donaldson Light Ln. did assault her causing the injuries she sustained on this date. Victim stated a female had called and she became distant toward the male and he became upset starting a physical fight with her that lasted about 10-20 minutes. Sgt. and Cpl. Hutchens and Deputies Kirkland and Parton did go to the residence and made contact with Mr. Langlois. Deputy asked him to step outside and talk to him and he became very agitated and cussing. Deputy explained why they were there and he stated he was asleep and did not know what was going on. Deputy then told him to come outside again and he refused. He would never give his side of the story. Due to the injuries to the female Deputy then placed Mr. Langlois under arrest for Aggravated Domestic violence. Mr. Langlois and the victim have been in a relationship for over a year. Mr. Langlois was transported to the Loudon County Jail.

in several locations throughout the county over the spring and summer of this year. Jonathan, while be an aggressive criminal defense attorney has always wanted to be a prosecutor and he jumped at the chance to join Russell Johnson's office when the office was awarded one of seven additional prosecutor positions awarded across that state beginning this fall. Edwards is a native of Monroe County where his parents still live. He was a graduate of Tennessee Tech and Michigan State School of Law. Edwards will be handling criminal court duties in Morgan County and general sessions court in Loudon, Roane and Morgan Counties.

Johnson stated, "We are thrilled to have both Jed and Jonathan on our team. They are smart, aggressive and equally excited about being here. Jed is a fluent speaker of Spanish which given the nature of some areas of our caseload is a huge plus. Jonathan knows our district already from have been on the opposite side of many of our cases. I love the attitude they both have coming into these positions."

to specifically recruit individuals with cyber skills. But he pointed out that “employees with STEM backgrounds are required across the entire gamut of FBI programs.” And that applies not just for special agents, but also analysts, engineers, and a variety of scientists and other professionals who help solve crimes through the analysis of DNA, fingerprints, trace evidence, and other cutting-edge methods.

“With regard to the cyber realm,” Lefevre said, “the FBI has computer scientists, computer engineers, IT specialists, digital forensic examiners, electronics engineers, electronics technicians, and computer analysis and response teams.” He added, “We are also moving heavily into data analytics. We have needs for data analysts and data scientists. Those are just a few of the positions specific to the cyber field.”

Industry is also competing for highly skilled STEM employees, Lefevre noted, and private companies often pay more than one can make as a public servant. But salary is not the only thing to consider when contemplating a career.

On November 8, 2017—National STEM Day—the FBI hosted a live Twitter chat on to answer questions about STEM and the FBI. During the conversation, employees from across the Bureau answered questions and provided resources for those interested in learning more about STEM at the FBI.

“We sell the mission, and our employees interact with the communities they serve,” Lefevre said. “At the FBI, if you have a computer science or engineering degree or some other technical background, you are going to do things you would not likely do anywhere else. Using your technical skills,” he explained, “you are going to see the direct effect of your work. You are going to see people’s lives saved. You are going to see money being returned to victims of fraud. You are going to see the mitigation of terror attacks. And you are going to know that you played a vital part in all of that because of the skills you brought to the table.”

Recruiting individuals with STEM training is a top priority for the FBI, and Bureau personnel regularly visit colleges across the country to talk with prospective job candidates. “We are now also working at the high school level doing the same thing,” Lefevre said, “to let kids know at an earlier age that the FBI is here and we are doing a lot of cool things they might not know about. We want to put the FBI on their radar.”

Reaching out to a younger audience is important. “If you think the FBI is something you might like to do in the future, fevre said. Because of now is the time to start planning,” Le-

Endangerment

Brittany McCulloch, 30, Myers Road Lenoir City, was charged with DUI, Driving on Revoked/Suspended License, and Child Endangerment x3.

Deputy Robbie Lane LCSO, observed a white Ford pull into the parking lot at Eaton Elementary School. Deputy Observed a white female exit the vehicle very unsteady on her feet. The female was getting three kids out of the car. The female walked into the front office of the school with two children that are enrolled in the school and a small child in car seat. Deputy observed the female in the office her speech was very slurred and she was having a hard time standing. The female had red watery eyes and was having trouble staying awake. Deputy approached the female and identified her as Ms. Brittany McCulloch. Deputy asked Ms. McCulloch was she had taken and she stated nothing. Ms. McCulloch was asked to sit down due to the fear of her falling. Deputy asked Ms. McCulloch if there was anyone we could call to pick up her child and she stated no. Deputy asked Ms. McCulloch for her id and she stated she did not have one. Deputy ran Ms. McCulloch with dispatch and her license came back revoked for DUI. Deputy placed Ms. McCulloch under arrest for Driving under the influence, Driving on revoked license. and three counts of Child Endangerment. due to her having her three children in the car. DCS was notified and one child remained at the school with Cpl. Estes until DCS could pick up the child. The other two children were taken to class by school staff. The vehicle a 2005 Ford Explorer white in color, was towed from the scene by Malones. Deputy read the Tennessee Implied Consent to Ms. McCulloch and she stated she would give a blood sample. Deputy transported Ms. McCulloch to Fort Loudon Hospital for blood draw. Deputy transported Ms. McCulloch to the Loudon County Jail with out incident. DCS case was started By Cpl. Estes.

Hollis Stamey, 58, Queener Road Loudon, was charged with DUI, and Violation of Implied Consent.

Deputy Billy Lewis LCSO, was dispatched to a wreck no injury on Highway 11 at Dead mans farm. Upon my arrival Deputy observed a white Mazda B4000 off the right side of the road in the tree line. Deputy made contact with the driver Mr. Hollis Stamey who stated that his phone had went off causing him to run off the side of the road.

While speaking with Mr. Stamey Deputy could smell the odor of a intoxicating beverage coming from his person and observed Mr. Stamey to have blood shot eyes and was unsteady on his feet. Mr. Stamey stated that he had been drinking shots of Black Velvet Whiskey most of the day while watching Football. Mr. Stamey was unsure how much he had consumed stating that he probably should not have been driving. Deputy Schults Observed a Yeti cup that had been full of Moonshine and cherries spilled out in the floor board. Mr. Stamey Consented to Standardized Field Sobriety at which time he failed.

Mr. Stamey refused Tennessee Implied Consent. Money Makers Wrecker service was called to the scene and towed Mr. Stamey's vehicle. Deputy Billy Lewis took Mr. Hollis Wesley Stamey into custody For Driving Under The Influence and Violation Of Tennessee Implied Consent and transported him to the Loudon County Jail without incident. This did happen in Loudon County Tennessee.

to be aware that their actions now will have a bearing on their ability to gain government employment later."

"We are the FBI. We are the ones expected to stop the next potential terror attack," he said. "We have high standards, and we are going to make sure that you are the best person for this organization before we give you that job offer."

On the other hand, he added, some would-be job candidates rule themselves out before ever applying. "My experience is that some folks think they are not competitive enough," he said. "My recommendation to them would be to apply—you have no idea until you apply."

Putting Your STEM Skills to Work at the FBI

Recruiting job candidates with STEM backgrounds is a top priority for the FBI. There are a range of STEM-related careers at the Bureau, including special agents, analysts, scientists, and a variety of other professional staff.

How close to homelessness are we?

Panel to discuss cycles of poverty and eviction as presented in Evicted by Matthew Desmond

Knox County Public Library invites the public to join Gabe Cline-Snell for a discussion of Evicted: Poverty and Profit in the American City by Matthew Desmond at noon on Wednesday, November 15 in the East Tennessee History Center auditorium. Books Sandwiched In, a monthly lunch and learn on current topics, is sponsored by the Friends of Knox County Public Library. Reading the book is optional. Drinks are available to purchase, and attendees are welcome to bring lunch with them.

"Evicted reveals how hard it is for those living in poverty to remain housed," Cline-Snell said. "It is an accurate reflection of the struggles faced by many in our Knoxville community who are homeless or at risk of becoming homeless."

There is hardly anything so essential as having a place to sleep and call home. In Evicted, Matthew Desmond provides clear analysis and solutions to address cycles of poverty and eviction. Matthew Desmond is a professor of Social Sciences at Harvard University. This ethnography is the product of years of research as an embedded sociologist in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The heart-rending accounts of tenants' desperate attempts to make ends meet and landlords' struggles to balance sympathy with profit are perhaps the most impactful on readers.

Gabe Cline-Snell is the Chief Clinical Services Officer for Volunteer Ministry Center. Gabe will be joined by a panel of experts on the issue of homelessness. Misty Goodwin of the Knoxville-Knox County Community Action Committee's Homeward Bound Program; Bruce Spangler, Chief Executive Officer of VMC; and Lisa Higginbotham, KnoxH-MIS data analyst. All are members of the Knoxville/Knox County Homeless Coalition.

Books Sandwiched In will continue next year. Stay tuned for information about our 2018 lineup of books and speakers. Want to suggest a speaker or title for Books Sandwiched In? Email eellis@knoxlib.org or call 865-215-8700.

Police beat

Rebecca Bradford, 33, Homeless Lenoir City, was charged with Criminal Impersonation, and Violation of Probation x3.

Deputy L. Anderson LCSO, responded to River Manor Apartment at Industrial Park Dr. in reference to a sick person. Upon arrival Deputy made contact with a female sitting next to the apartment's dumpster. The female advised her name was Candace and gave a birthday of 08/01. Dispatch was unable to find any information for that name and date of birth. After a brief field interview the female identified herself as Rebecca Bradford, the offender. The offender stated she intentionally gave a false name because she had a warrant. Dispatch confirmed the offender had two local active warrants (5481633, 5481632) and one Lenoir City warrant. The offender was taken into custody and transported to the Loudon County Jail without incident. LPD officer Dragon served the city warrant. All occurred in Loudon County, TN.
