law enforcement to international law enforcement. Today, you join the ranks of more than 50,000 graduates from more than 170 countries."

Founded in 1935, the National Academy program offers mid-career law enforcement leaders an advanced training program at Quantico, Virginia, the same location where the FBI trains its agents. National Academy students take courses in subjects ranging from behavioral science to counterterrorism to intelligence theory and engage in intense physical training. Just as importantly, they network with their peers.

Forging friendships and partnerships, Wray said, "is what the National Academy does best. As the world becomes smaller and perils loom larger, we've learned that a threat to one of us can be a threat to all of us. We've learned that working together isn't just the best option, it's really the only option."

In welcoming Trump, Wray noted that it has been 46 years since a U.S. commander in chief participated in a National Academy graduation. "Mr. President, there is no better place to talk about the importance of partnerships than here at the National Academy, surrounded by some of the finest law enforcement leaders from here at home and around the world."

"It is an honor to join you today and to stand with the incredible men and women of law enforcement," Trump said during his remarks. "I am here not only to congratulate you, but to honor you for your courage and devotion."

"It is an honor to join you today and to stand with the incredible men and women of law enforcement."

President Donald Trump

In addition to thanking the many family members in the audience, the president said, "Now, more than ever, we must support the men and women in blue." Trump addressed a number of issues related to policing and national security and said the Department of Justice has announced more than $98 million in grant funding to help local police departments hire new officers. "If we want to bring down violent crime," he said, "then we must stand up for our police."

Wray noted that last February, the president addressed the Major County Sheriffs Association, calling for a national partnership and a new beginning between law enforcement and the citizens they serve. "By joining us today," he said, the president is "renewing that call."

Trump also recognized the National Academy's class president and spokesman, Drug Enforcement Administration officer Craig Wiles, whose father graduated from the National Academy 40 years ago and was in the audience today for his son. Wiles reminded the graduates and their families that "evil lives around the world," noting that during his session's nearly 11 weeks at Quantico, 24 law enforcement officers lost their lives, several terror attacks occurred in the U.S., and 10,000 individuals died of drug overdoses.

But Wiles remained hopeful. Based on his experience at the National Academy, he said, "I have never been more enthusiastic and optimistic about the future of the law enforcement community." He added, "There is no greater calling than this honorable profession."

the same offense on 11/17/2017 when he sold beer to another underage individual who was also under the direction and supervision of law enforcement. Mr. Patel was arrested and charged with TCA 57-4-203, sales to minors prohibited. These actions did happen in the City of Loudon.

Dylan Burns, 21, Hines Valley Road Lenoir City, was charged with Criminal Impersonation, and Driving on Revoked Suspended License.

Cpl. Chris Jenkins LCSO responded to said location Hines Valley Rd. to a possible wreck with injury or a possible domestic dispute. Deputy arrived on scene and found a black male and a white female standing outside of the vehicle. Deputy then made contact with 2 witnesses and they gave verbal and written statements that the male and female was outside the vehicle arguing and the male was kicking her clothes. The male got into the drivers seat of the vehicle and when the female attempted to get in the vehicle the male almost drug her. Witnesses also stated that the male was driving when the vehicle wrecked. Deputy made contact with the female and identified her.

Deputy then made contact with the male and tried to identify him. He wrote on a piece of paper the name of Mr. Ward and a date of birth. The male could not provide a social security number or any other identifying information. Deputy then found a social security card and ran the social that came back to Mr. Dylan Thomas Burns. Mr. Burns identification was sent to Deputy phone and was identified as Mr. Burns. Mr. Burns did give false information to this officer to hide his true identity. A run if Mr. Burns license through NCIC showed Mr. Burns to have a revoked license in Tennessee for failure to satisfy 2-2017. Jessica Cameron, 36, Old Hwy 95 Lenoir City, was charged with Domestic Assault, and Simple Possession.

Deputy A. Parton LCSO, responded to Old Hwy 95 in reference to a domestic. Upon my arrival Deputy spoke to the victim who stated his wife had assaulted him and his daughter. Mr. Cameron stated that Jessica Cameron was in a verbal argument with him and his daughter when she shoved his daughter on to the couch. Jessica Cameron then went to the kitchen and picked up a large knife and chased him around the house.

She then walked outside of the home and threw a rock at victim striking him in the chest. Deputy then went and spoke to his daughter and she confirmed victim story. Both parties filled out a domestic violence statement form and refused to be taken to a shelter or a safe place. While on scene Deputy observed Jessica Cameron in the passenger seat of her mothers car traveling down Old Hwy 95. Deputy then followed the vehicle and stopped it on Grubb Rd.

While taking Jessica Cameron into custody Deputy could smell the odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle. Cpl. C. Jenkins recovered 1.8 Grams of green leafy substance believed to be marijuana from the vehicle. Deputy then asked Jessica Cameron who the green leafy substance belonged to and she stated that it was hers.

Deputy then transported Ms. Cameron to Loudon County Justice Center with no further incident.

Therefore seeing the above facts, Deputy is charging Jessica Cameron with possession of schedule VI and domestic assault. This did occur in Loudon County, Tennessee.
