Man charged after knock knocking on doors

Tommy Richardson, 38, Country Lane Lenoir City, was charged with Public Intoxication.

Deputy Brad Rayfield LCSO, was dispatched to the area of Cardwell Chapel Road of a white male subject that was scaring people, and knocking on several peoples door and falling down, talking to himself. Deputy made contact with the male and identified him as Tommy Richardson, who was not wearing a shirt and walking backwards and almost falling. Richardson had blood-shot eyes and admitted to taking several different medications including Hydrocodone. Deputy felt if left in public he would be a danger to himself and others. Richardson was placed under arrest.

Christopher Newcomb, 29, Doyle Street Lenoir City, was charged with Domestic Assault.

According to the report, Officer Michael Arden LCPD, responded to Doyle Street to investigate a suicide threat. Upon arrival Officer made contact with the victim who stated Newcomb had come home with an agitated and aggressive attitude. After being told he was not coming in Newcomb began hitting the door with his fist breaking the glass.

Victim 2 opened the door and Newcomb ran into the house, entered an up stair bathroom, began throwing objects about the room stating he was going to drown himself.

Officer Arden observed the broken door and while inside could hear elevated voices and the sound of objects being thrown around. Upon making contact with Newcomb, he did appear aggressive and hostile, and displayed red bleeding knuckles. EMS cleared Newcomb of medical issues.

Newcomb did state that he did not wish to harm himself. Newcomb was placed under arrest.

268th session on June 7. Among the 228 graduates—which included students from 47 states, 24 countries, seven federal agencies, and every branch of the military—was a University of Alabama at Birmingham Police Department captain accepting the academy's 50,000th diploma.

"Surreal is the best way to describe it," said Capt. Amy Schreiner, who learned only moments before receiving her certificate that she was the milestone graduate. "This just starts the next chapter of my career," she said. "And I want to take the lessons that I've learned here—and the relationships that I've made here—and extend those to further my career."

The 10-week program is grounded in fully accredited academics, with leading-edge practical coursework in a broad array of subjects: intelligence theory, terrorist mindsets, management science, law, behavioral science, forensic science, and the media, to name a few. The students earned more than 3,800 combined credit hours since arriving at Quantico in early April. Students are also tested physically with frequent and taxing workouts, a refreshing change for many of the mid-career officers who have ascended the ranks in their departments and are no longer on a beat. The most valued thing students take from the academy, however, is the round-the-clock time spent with more than 200 colleagues with varied backgrounds, languages, and personalities but a common goal.

"Building partnerships and networks is what the National Academy does best," said Joshua Skule, executive assistant director of the FBI's Intelligence Branch, during the commencement address. Skule talked candidly about the Bureau's priorities and the difficult work of combating terrorists and spies. The National Academy, he said, is integral to building an international bulwark against common threats.

"If we are to succeed in stopping their networks, we need to strengthen our networks," Skule said.

John Russo, chief of the Rutherford Police Department in New Jersey, spoke on behalf of his class of graduates during the commencement. "This is the highest honor of my career," he said. "And it's been my privilege to work alongside each member of this session."

Like his classmates, Russo plans to take the best practices he learned over the past 10 weeks and apply them in his own department, which benefits not only his community at home but the FBI as well, since the Bureau's biggest asset is local partners.

American Legion Post 256 Commander Post 256, Vic Vickery presents a Legion coffee cup and certificate of appreciation to Educator Rachel Yarnell

This month's guest speaker for American Legion Post 256 was Rachel Yarnell Thompson, a graduate of Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, TN, she holds a Master's Degree from George Mason University, Fairfax Virginia. She is now an educator at the George C. Marshall International Center and has been there for over 18 years. The center is located on the museum site of General Marshall's home in Leesburg, Virginia. Ms. Thompson wrote the General George C. Marshall biography, "Marshall: A Statesman Shaped in the Crucible of War". She also co-authored "America's Hero to the World: George C. Marshall". "Her in depth knowledge of George Catlett Marshall, Jr. (December 31, 1880 – October 16, 1959) provided an awe-inspiring insight into Marshall, an American statesman and soldier. Marshall was Chief of Staff of the United States Army under presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman, and served as Secretary of State and Secretary of Defense under Truman. He was hailed as the "organizer of victory" by Winston Churchill for his leadership of the Allied victory in World War II. on TUESDAYS beginning September 5 from 6:00 to 9:00 pm, for a total of eleven weeks. This will also offer an opportunity to those that have not been able to attend on a Thursday night in the past. Class location will be at the Sheriff's Office at the Justice Center. There will be one Saturday scheduled for off-site training of driving and firing range.

The series of classes is free of charge and will be taught by law enforcement professionals volunteering their time to share their expertise. The purpose of the Academy is to provide citizens with a basic understanding of the training and requirements for their local law enforcement officers and to foster a cooperative partnership between our citizens and the officers who serve them. Classes also offer community residents the opportunity to meet one-on-one with the officers and management of the Sheriff's Department. Topics covered include Tennessee law, domestic violence, criminal investigations, narcotics, corrections and jail tour, patrol duties and tactics, judicial system, communications and 911 tour, firearms training, defensive driving tactics, self defense tactics, and K-9 operations and capabilities.

Class openings for the Tuesday night class are currently available and will require a background check. Applicants must be a resident of Loudon County. Successful graduates will receive a certificate of completion at their graduation ceremony.

Applications are available at the Loudon County Sheriff's Office, 12680 Hwy 11 W, Suite 1, or on the website at www.loudon-countysheriff.org under the community section. They must be filled out completely and returned for approval no later than August 15. To have an application e-mailed to you, please request one from dhines@lcsotn.org.
