The Department of Justice unsealed indictments against three Russians alleged to be responsible for a long-running and persistent campaign to target and infiltrate the networks of critical infrastructure in the United States and worldwide.

The charges allege Pavel Aleksandrovich Akulov, Mikhail

Mikhailovich Gavrilov, and Marat Valeriyevich Tyukov were part of a Russian intelligence operational unit that security experts dubbed "Dragonfly," "Berserk Bear," "Energetic Bear," and "Crouching Yeti." The unit is part of an entity called Centor 16 in the Russian Federal Security Service (FSB)—a successor agency to the Soviet KGB.

The alleged operation occurred in two phases. The first involved deploying a custom malware implant known to cybersecurity experts as Havex, which infected a significant number of organizations in the global energy sector.

cluded targeted compromises of energy sector entities and individuals and engineers who worked with industrial control systems (ICS) and supervisory control and data acquisition (SCADA) systems. Collectively, these intrusions could have had a devastating impact on energy delivery worldwide.

The first phase stretched between at least 2012 and 2014 and resulted in Havex being downloaded onto more than 17,000 unique devices in the United States and other nations. An FBI intelligence analyst who worked on the case said the group had used a combination of techniques to deploy Havex, including sweeping efforts to cast a wide net across the global energy sector, but also well-researched and targeted techniques to reach specific companies and individuals.

Among the more alarming techniques used with Havex was the conspiracy's compromise of a company that manufactures equipment and software used by ICS/SCADA systems. These are the control and safety mechanisms that exist within energy production facilities and other operational environments. For safety reasons, these are typically closed systems. But because the group had gained access into the systems of a company that provides a component of these systems, they were able to hide their malware within software updates offered by the company—a technique known as a supply chain attack.

Regardless of how the Havex malware was deployed, the analyst said it could be tailored for a variety of uses, including gathering credentials and scanning for human-machine interfaces. "That means the ways a human may interface with the system to tell it what to do," he said. "If that interface is connected to a network, you have the potential for a remote actor to send instructions to a critical network." In 2014, the group ceased using Havex after it was publicly exposed, and they began evolving the operation.

The second phase involved targeted intrusions of energy sector companies, including an intrusion in 2017 of the business network of a nuclear power plant in Kansas. This business network was not directly connected to any ICS/SCADA devices. An FBI special agent who investigated the case said they found no evidence that the hackers took any sensitive data of intelligence value, and it appeared the goal was simply to gain and maintain access. "Meaning that, at a later date, they could have used this access to affect or damage the energy grid or other critical operations within the United States," the agent explained.

The Kansas intrusion in 2017 was part of a multi-pronged attack. "When we peeled away at the onion, we found this was a much larger campaign targeting the global energy sector to the tune of about 500 companies worldwide," said the agent. "We believe they targeted nearly 3,300 people through a months-long spearphishing campaign." As part of this phase, the group is also accused of breaching the network of a U.S. construction company. Access to that network allowed the group to send legitimate looking emails with the resume of an individual claiming to have industry-specific skills. The resume contained malicious code that victims could inadvertently download when they reviewed the document.

Evading

Antonio Pina-Reyez, 34, 2nd Avenue Lenoir City, was charged with DUI, Violation of Implied Consent, Evading Arrest, Simple Possession, Speed Limit, Driving on Revoked License, Financial Responsibility Law, and Driving on Roadway laned for Traffic.

Officer H. Wilkes LCPD, was traveling down Highway 321 passing Abbie Dr and observed a blue Chevrolet Silverado bearing Tennessee registration DLK-932 failing to maintain their lane. Officer activated his emergency lighting equipment at Taco Bell, in attempt to conduct a traffic stop on the vehicle. After activating his emergency lighting equipment the vehicle failed to yield. Officer was able to pace the vehicle going 60 in a 40 while failing to yield to emergency lighting equipment. After a short pursuit the vehicle came to a stop at W 2nd Ave where a high risk traffic stop was conducted. Both subjects exited the vehicle and were apprehended. While speaking with the driver, who Officer identified to be ANTONIO PINA REYES, Officer noticed a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from his person and also observed him stumbling. REYES was placed under arrest where he was then marandized at which time he admitted that he was intoxicated. Officer T. Eldridge LCPD, placed the passenger, later identified as VICTOR EDUARDO VEGA GARCIA, into custody during the high risk traffic stop. Officer T. Eldridge observed a white rock like substance believed to be crack cocaine laying in plain view on the passenger seat. Due to what Officer believe to be crack cocaine laying in plain view, a probable cause search was conducted on the vehicle. Officers located a one quart bottle of Corona that was completely empty, multiple beer bottle caps, spilt alcohol on the middle console, and a white rock like substance believed to be crack cocaine. The white rock like substance tested positive for crack cocaine through a field kit and weighed .25 grams. Both parties denied possession of the crack cocaine. REYES consented to a Field Sobriety Test, conducted by Officer T. Eldridge. REYES was transported to a nearby location to perform field sobriety. The field sobriety test produced the following results. REYES had a lack of smooth pursuit, a distinct nystagmus at maximum deviation, and the onset of a nystagmus prior to 45 degrees in both eyes indicating to all six clues during the Horizontal Gaze Nystagmus. Reyes performed an improper turn during the walk and turn resulting in only one clue. During the one leg stand, REYES lost his balance, began hopping on one leg, and stopped counting out loud during the test before being told to do so. Following the conclusion of the test, Officer T. Eldridge determined REYES to be intoxicated, and under the influence of alcohol and was charged with Driving Under the Influence. The vehicle was towed by MoneyMakers. Both subjects were transported to Loudon County Jail without incident.

decisions. If you feel the same tomorrow, go for it. If you're in the middle of a conflict at work, try not to take sides. Tell anyone who asks your opinion that you need time to think about it. Consider scheduling an hour of meditation. The word for today is Zen!

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Passion and romance are in the air, Taurus, so make the most of the great atmosphere! Everyone seems to be in a festive mood. You feel close to others and feel profound gratitude for the loved ones in your life. Consider leaving work early to go home to snuggle up close with your special someone. Be sure to be extra open about sharing your feelings today.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

You may receive some upsetting news from a family member today, Gemini. It could have you reeling for a moment, but when you take the time to think about it some more you'll realize that things aren't as troubling as they first seemed. Be sure to get all the facts before taking any action. You want to be sure to do what's right in this situation.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

You must weigh your physical limitations with your desire to get everything done, Cancer. You run the risk of wearing yourself out and getting sick just as you finish your tasks. Enlist the help of others, if you can, for all those chores and errands that absolutely need to be done. You should definitely leave anything that can wait. Your health needs to come first!

Leo 7/23-8/22

Today you could realize that a friend is actually your soul mate, Leo. You've been spending a lot of time together attending social events, and you've come to realize how much you look forward to each other's company. Your new level of affection seems obvious, but it would be a good idea to put it into words. If you can't screw up the courage to do so, express your thoughts with a gift.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

You may feel at odds with the rest of the world now, Virgo, as you yearn for some quiet time alone. See if you can find a balance between spending time with your family and time alone. If you set the alarm to wake you early, you can enjoy the peace and quiet of dawn. If you aren't an early riser, you can always sequester yourself in the library for a few hours of solitude.

Libra 9/23-10/22

You have a warm and sensitive nature, Libra, and today you could be feeling especially tuned in to the feelings of others. Romance is very much on your mind, as are all things sensual. If you're shopping for clothes, you'll likely be drawn to rich and luxurious fabrics. Don't hesitate to indulge this passionate side of yourself. Your mate will likely be quite appreciative!

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

This may be a tricky day, Scorpio, as you feel the pull of conflicting demands and desires. On the one hand, you feel obligated to your career and fulfilling the demands of your employer. On the other, your loved ones miss you and would like to have you around more. There's no easy answer, although you might want to consider ways to delegate more work so you can spend more time with your loved ones.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

It doesn't seem fair that your workload has increased these last few days. Never mind that you still have all of your normal tasks to do, your boss expects you to finalize a new budget and write a proposal as well? Enlist the help of others if you can. If you can't, simply do the best you can without sacrificing time with your family and loved ones. Ultimately, Sagittarius, the latter is more important.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

You've been extremely busy these past few months, working extra hours at the office, then going out with friends late at night. This sort of behavior is known as "burning the candle at both ends," and it rarely has a happy ending, Capricorn. You need to take some quiet time, ideally with someone special. It's likely that your romantic partner misses you and would jump at the opportunity to spend an intimate evening with you.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

Expect today's planetary energies to raise your social consciousness, Aquarius. You may be distracted with thoughts of the homeless person you saw today, or the television special you saw on babies with AIDS. You may be reflecting on your connection to and responsibilities toward humanity. Why don't you put aside a little time or money for the charity of your choice? If you're feeling these urges, don't hesitate to act on them!

Pisces 2/19-3/20

You may be asked to swallow your pride and give in to someone else's will today, Pisces. This will be difficult for you to do. Try to concentrate on your good reasons for obedience, and work out your frustration by taking a brisk walk. Expect to receive some welcome news from another source, which will also help calm you down. Relax with a group of supportive friends tonight.
