FBI recovers $8 million swindled from failed bank's small-town investors

When the CEO of a Kansas bank pleaded guilty last year to embezzling customer funds in a $47 million cryptocurrency scheme, it appeared justice was served. The bank officer, Shan Hanes, was sentenced to 24 years in prison—the longest-ever federal sentence in the state for a white-collar crime. And the bank's customers got their money back since the deposits were federally insured.

Left holding the bag, however, were about 30 local shareholders

Brandon Cope, 35, Rutherford South, was charged with Theft of Property.

Asset protection with Home Depot reported the theft of 79 boxes of flooring. The flooring is valued at $68.00 a box for a total of $5,372.00. The asset person at Home Depot observed two males load two carts full of flooring. The males exited the store with merchandise, and the asset person approached. They provided a receipt and were released. The asset person checked the camera and the males did not pay for the merchandise and provided a forged receipt. The defendants are suspects in several Home Depots across East Tennessee.

Police beat

Jeffrey Jeffords, 23, Oak Chase BLVD, Lenoir City, was charged with, Disorderly Conduct.

Deputy Craig Brewer LCSO, responded to Oak Chase BLVD, Lenoir City, Tennessee, to report a male causing a disturbance at this address. On arrival, the deputy met the complainant. He explained his brother had been drinking alcohol last night. His brother, Jeffery Jeffords, was now coming out of the house into the driveway and roadway, causing a disturbance and yelling and screaming at the family.

When the deputy talked with Jeffrey Jeffords, he noticed an odor of an intoxicating beverage coming from his breath and body. He admitted to being outside and having an argument with his brother. When the deputy checked, he found dents and fresh blood on his parents' vehicles, where he had been beating their cars. My parents are out of town, so the deputy could not determine if there is any fresh damage.

Due to Jeffrey Jeffords' actions, he is a danger to himself or others, and this continues to occur, putting others in danger. This did occur in Loudon County, Tennessee who owned Heartland Tri-State Bank through a holding company in Elkhart, Kansas.

The bank's failure cost them more than $8.2 million—a figure amounting to generations of accumulated wealth for farmers, teachers, and others in and around the rural town of around 2,000 people.

"When the bank failed, the value of their stock went to zero because it had only one asset—and that was Heartland Tri-State Bank," said Special Agent Sage Hemmert, who led the FBI's investigation from the Bureau's Garden City office, a satellite office of the Kansas City Division.

"These were not Silicon Valley investors," Hemmert said. "These were regular people from southwest Kansas. And a lot of them had their net worth tied up in this bank."

So it was quite the surprise last November when the bank's shareholders learned the FBI had recovered nearly all of their money.

How the Bureau traced crypto breadcrumbs to one of the scammers' digital wallets and seized more than $8 million illustrates both the complexities of investigating digital currencies and how the FBI is always evolving to protect against emerging scams.

In this case, the bank's CEO, Shan Hanes, was duped in a cryptocurrency fraud scam in which online perpetrators convinced him to invest in a cryptocurrency scheme that promised big returns.

Victims in this type of fraud are encouraged to put more and more money into what appears to be a highly profitable investment platform, only to discover too late that they can't withdraw their funds. The scam is commonly known as pig-butcherer—a name analogous to fattening a pig for slaughter.

Hanes started slow, investing a few thousand dollars in 2022 to buy what he thought was cryptocurrency. A year later, he wired more than $47 million from customer accounts to the scammers, depleting the bank's holdings. When a state banking regulator uncovered the fraud, it closed the bank and called the FBI.

Working with inspectors general from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) the Federal Reserve Board, and the Federal Housing Finance Agency, Hemmert and a team of investigators from the Kansas City Division set about interviewing victims and following the money. The division's Complex Financial Crime Squad and Cyber Crimes Task Force quickly traced the flow of scammed funds to an offshore digital wallet, or crypto account, containing more than $8 million. The FBI seized the funds.

Horoscopes

prove to someone that you can take the heat without being affected by it? You can get burned just as easily as anyone else even if you deny it.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Your physical energy is strong. Your desire for passion and love is intense, Taurus. Combine these two forces for a passionate night of love and romance. No one will be able to resist your power.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

Matters of the heart may not be going smoothly, Gemini. Perhaps someone's approach has been too aggressive. Maybe you've been too pushy about what you want. Tension builds up and creates disharmony instead of love.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

When it comes to love and romance, you're probably on fire, Cancer. You have an incredible passion for love now, making you one of the most desirable catches around. Partner with someone who shares your thirst for adventure, spontaneity, and the bizarre.

Leo 7/23-8/22

If things aren't going smoothly in a romantic relationship, be careful about blaming yourself, Leo. A partnership means that two people work together equally. If this isn't the case, let your partner know how you feel.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Your sex drive is apt to be strong today. This could be the only thing on your mind, Virgo. Every person you see may stir feelings in you, even though you may already be committed to someone.

Libra 9/23-10/22

Bring more fire and passion to your love life, Libra. Spark things up by being more adventurous. The bolder you are, the more response you will get. Even though you may like to plan ahead and take things slowly, your romantic life is one area where you might do better taking the opposite approach.

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

Recent conflicts may stir up some anger in you, Scorpio. This is a powerful force, and you could be tempted to get into a big fight. Put the weapons away and bring out the olive branch.

Sagittarius 11/22-12/21

You may not be having the best of luck when it comes to matters of the heart, Sagittarius, and you may feel you need to take some sort of action. Be careful of acting just for the sake of creating movement.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Love and romance are in the air tonight, so feel free to let loose, Capricorn. Instead of being a passive, gentle, soft kind of love, the emotion you feel may be more forceful, passionate, and aggressive. Roll with this feeling as you seduce the object of your desire. Take charge in the bedroom as you lure your mate with your fantastic love of life and desire to have a good time.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

If you haven't gotten the love you want lately, Aquarius, perhaps it's because you haven't asked for it. If you're involved with someone and feel unfulfilled, consider having a heart-to-heart talk about your needs and what you want out of the relationship in order to be happy. If you aren't in a relationship now and want to be, you need to be more aggressive about getting to know the one you want.

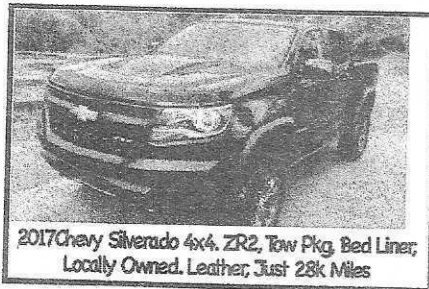

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Feel free to upset the equilibrium in order to have your needs met, especially in the bedroom, Pisces. In an effort to maintain the peace and keep everything on an even keel, you've neglected your desires for the sake of pleasing someone else. Making compromises for others can be noble, but it may never get you exactly what you want. This is a time to be more aggressive in your pursuit of love.
